

Real proteins carry fewer bits per letter than letter counts predict, in all 19 alphabets

- $\log_2(n)$: the value if all n letters were equally common
- from letter frequencies in Swiss-Prot 2026_03
- ◆ measured from kmerseek seed counts in the human proteome
- joins the three values of one alphabet

a b

